

LITTLE GRAINS,
FOR LITTLE PEOPLE.

NEW YORK.

COPYRIGHTED, 1885, BY PALMER COX.

BY PALMER COX.

AN INTERESTING LECTURE,

My friends the lecture here to night
Should fill you all with great delight,
For ears will turn and eyes will gleam
When Candy is the speaker's theme,
The Chocolate Cream Drop now revealed
Has not an equal in the field,
A No P you'll always find
Is best and richest of the kind,
A morsel that your mind will hold
Long after down your throat it's rolled,
Or melting on the tongue it's spread.

A tide of sweetness through the head,
Beware of imitations made
On every side to catch the trade,
On Chocolate Cream Drops good and pure,
The trade mark is a fixture sure,
A moment to examine stop,
A No P find on each Drop,
For thus the Firm with caution brand
Each Cream Drop ere it leaves their hand,
This Patent process he it known
With rights reserved is theirs alone."

LITTLE GRAINS,

for little people.

NEW YORK
1885

The ducks and geese
the down supply,
That heads on pillows
soft may lie,
To dream the silent
hours away,
And rise refreshed at dawn of day.

The faithful horse gives up his hair
For mattress, lounge, or easy chair,
And who that tries them for his rest,
But thinks they always are the best.

The goats and kids that love to play,
With children on their homeward way, Give tiny shoes and gaiters neat,
For mamma's and for babies feet.

DISTRICT SCHOOL

When cunning rats
 Come popping out
 We jump on chairs
 to scream and shout, But after all upon the hand
 We wear their skin and think it grand.

P

The happy swine that roots and plays Around the door step half his clays, Gives bristles that make brushes rare
For either clothing teeth or hair.

The elephants that shake the field,
The ivory for brushes yield,
And those who keep the trade supplied Must learn to run as well as ride.

Ⓐ

The seals give up,
in lands of snow,
Their coats to spearing Esquimau,
That people may have furs to wear
When winter brings the chilly air.

The bear that lives by hook or crook
And sucks his paw in wintry nook, Gives oil that makes the ringlets shine
And lends to bangs a charm divine.

5

THE BIRDS THAT ROAM THE PLAINS OF SAND, ARE STRIPPED OF ALL THEIR PLUMAGE GRAND AND LEFT TO STAND THE RAIN OR SHINE THAT PEOPLE MAY HAVE FEATHERS FINE.

THE WHALE THAT DRAGS
THE SAILORS ROUND GIVES BONE, THAT IN THE STAYS IS FOUND, AND THROUGH ITS AID
THE SLENDER WAIST IS TAPERED DOWN WITH NICEST TASTE.

21

One day while walking on the green,
The King suggested to his Queen,
"Let's eat a pound of Chocolate Cream!"

Her features lighted like the sun;

Said she, "My love, it shall be done,

But get the brand NO. 1.

They sought the nearest candy shop,

Selected out the favorite Drop,

Then to the palace their steps they bent, Both eating Chocolates as they went.

The Caliph of Bagdad once sent for his Vizer, ('Twas acknowledged by all that no person was wiser.)

Said he, "When in Chocolate Creams I invest,

How may I determine which ones are the best?"

Said the Vizer, "I'm glad that the subject you mention, For lately I've given it careful attention.

This rule then observe, and that's easily done,

Just look on each Drop for
NO. 1."

The troubled look passed from the Caliph's sad face,
And he grabbed the old Vizer in grateful embrace.

Said he, "Your head's sound, you command my respect;

You're tremendously thoughtful and always correct."

Mr. Barnum had a bear, Who always used to go Around the country travelling With Barnum's greatest show.

*When he would growl and Barnum saw
His eyes with fury gleam,
He always would administer An A-one Chocolate Cream.*

*Magic was in that toothsome drop,
All would with wonder stare,
To see how quickly he became An amiable bear.*

*"What makes the bear love Barnum so?"
The eager children scream.
The answer's plain, as all may know, It's A-one Chocolate Cream.*

*There was a young lady,
And strange it may seem,
She lived upon nothing
But Chocolate Cream.
A No. 1. brand, 'twas the whole of her diet,
But yet she was sensible, healthy and quiet.*

AN INTERESTING LECTURE,

"My friends the lecture here to-night
 Should fill you all with great delight,
 For ears will turn and eyes will gleam
 When Candy is the speaker's theme,
 The Chocolate Cream Drop now revealed
 Has not an equal in the field,
 'A No P' you'll always find
 Is best and richest of the kind,
 A morsel that your mind will hold
 Long after down your throat its rolled,
 Or melting on the tongue has spread.

A tide of sweetness through the head.
 Beware of imitations made
 On every side to catch the trade,
 On Chocolate Cream Drops good and pure.
 The trade mark is a fixture sure,
 A moment to examine stop,
 'A No P' find on each Drop,
 For thus the Firm with caution brand
 Each Cream Drop ere it leaves their hand.
 This Patent process be it known
 With rights reserved is theirs alone "